

SAMANTHA BORISOFF

Samantha Borisoff, a climatologist with the Northeast Regional Climate Center at Cornell University, is the State Coordinator for CoCoRaHS in New York. Severe weather near her hometown sparked her interest in weather at a young age. She received a B.S. in Meteorology from Penn State and was a weathercaster in Presque Isle, ME, and Binghamton, NY. Before moving to the Ithaca area, Samantha shared her love of weather and science as an informal educator in Buffalo. Outside of weather, she enjoys baking, golfing, traveling, and spending time with family.

