

COCORAHS—SEND IN YOUR PRECIPITATION REPORT 9/22

FORT COLLINS, CO — Wednesday, September 21, 2005

Just a reminder that tomorrow is our big day. We want to see how many of us are awake, have our rain gauges in place and are able to measure and report daily precipitation on the CoCoRaHS website.

Our "Dry run" yesterday went OK—over 800 entries were submitted with all but about 30 showing 0.00 for the day. There are more clouds around today, so hopefully there will be more to report tomorrow. So get out there and MEASURE :-) I know it's hard to be motivated when it is DRY.

Big Picnic—Come if you can

Also, this is a final reminder. Please let us know if you can attend the Fort Collins CoCoRaHS volunteer recognition picnic on Saturday, Oct 1 from noon to 3 PM -- Roland Moore Park accessed from Shields St. in Fort Collins north of Drake. We'll be at Picnic Shelter Number 2. Food is provided, so you just need to bring yourself. Come a little early if you want to help cook. :-) We have rounded up lots of prizes to give out in thanks for all that you have done.

Please RSVP with your name, station number, and number who will be attending to: Henry Reges: hreges@atmos.colostate.edu or call 970 491-1196

Thanks and hope to see some of you on the 1st. We'll save a prize for who comes the farthest - - -
